41. Read the text and choose the correct answer. If you plan to travel to another country, you might want to take gifts for the people you will meet there. However, gift-giving customs change from one country to another. For example, imagine you want to take flowers to someone's home when you are invited to dinner. You can't just buy any flowers. In Europe chrysanthemums are used almost exclusively for funerals and roses are just too personal in many countries. In some places you should take an even number of flowers and in others you have to give an odd number. In fact, in some countries like Hungary, it's common to just give the hostess one, well-formed flower. Just to be sure you don't make a social error, you should ask a local florist what the best floral gift is for specific occasions. In some countries the presentation is more important than the gift itself. For example, in Japan, it's more important where you buy the gift than the gift itself. Some stores are status symbols. Give your presents wrapped in the store paper with the store logo. In other countries, the color of the wrapping paper is important. Avoid black and white in Asia. They are colors used in funerals. Asians prefer red, their lucky color. Latin Americans prefer bright colors and Eastern Europeans like soft colors. Simple errors can cause complex problems.

In which places shouldn't you give chrysanthemums to the hostess?

- Europe
 Japan
